Employe of Mutual Trust Co., Germantown Ave and Somerset St., Robbed on Street

FIRE SHOTS TO AWE CROWD AND FLEE IN AUTOMOBILE

Victim Shoots at Men—Police on Motorcycles Start Pursuit—Empty Bag Found

Machine Bearing Stolen Tags Recovered—Think Robbers Took Train for New York

Four motor bandits, including a licensed chauffeur and an unshaven man in overalls, escaped with $10,000 in cash at 8:55 o'clock this morning after holding up a messenger of the Mutual Trust Co. at Germantown avenue and Somerset street.

"The Clockwork Bandits," as the police called them, because of their carefully planned movements, wrested a satchel filled with currency and bonds from Frederick Meyers, the messenger, who lives at 1818 West Erie avenue.

Meyers, crouching behind a telephone pole, fired three shots after the fleeing robbers as their green touring car shot west on Somerset street at a sixty-mile clip.

The car was noticed near Germantown avenue and Somerset street, shortly after 8:30 o'clock. Two men were on the driver's seat and two others stood on the sidewalk, chatting with the chauffeur.

Meyers left the trust company office at 8:54 o'clock, carrying the heavy satchel.

About a half block distant to the west on the southbound No. 65 car, which Meyers intended boarding, as he was crossing the southbound track the two men on the sidewalk near the tourist car walked quickly toward him.

One of the robbers wore overalls and was unshaven. They apparently were paying no attention to the messenger who they were about to rob. They both whipped out long revolvers of the army type and thrust them against the messenger's breast.

The other seized the bag and wrenched it away. Then the man with the overalls fired several shots in the air to draw attention away from the man who was being held up.

Man With Bag Leaps Into Car
The engine of the touring car set up a deafening roar as the robber with the satchel jumped on the running board and then leaped into the tonneau.

The man with the overalls backed quickly to the motorcar, covering Meyers with the same-looking weapon.

When his back touching the touring car he flung himself into the tonneau and the car lurched forward, speeding to the corner of the street. The fifty-mile clip west on Somerset street.

Meyers ran a dozen yards to the corner and sheltered himself behind a telephone pole, drawing his revolver and firing as he did so.

Final Satchel and Car
At 9:45 o'clock the empty satchel was picked up at Twenty-ninth street and Columbia avenue. At 10 o'clock the green touring car, a machine of an expensive type, was found abandoned at Nineteenth and Market streets.

Police believe the robbers timed their movements so they could board a train for New York which left the Baltimore and Ohio Station, Twenty-fourth and Chestnut streets, at 10:16 o'clock. Detectives had been assigned to Broad Street Station, West Philadelphia Station, North Philadelphia Station and all the ferries, but it is said the B. & O. station was not covered.

Within five minutes after the robbery the man carrying here in a year, a motorcycle squad reached the scene and started in pursuit. The entire machinery of the police bureau was set in motion.

At 9:45 o'clock a hand-to-hand chase with six detectives started from City Hall, while others were flushed out a radius of fifty miles of Philadelphia. All roads and the ferries were covered.

Believe Car Was Stolen
Police say the car used by the robbers bore Pennsylvania license tag No. 470901. It was learned this number was registered in the name of Mrs. A. G. Reinhardt, 1000 Youango street. Mrs. Reinhardt told detectives the tags were stolen from her machine yesterday. The police believe the green car also was stolen.

T. S. Reilly, manager of the trust company branch, said the cash carried by Meyers represented the deposits made there on June 17.

Meyers had been employed as a messenger four weeks, he said, and formerly had been employed by a wholesale millinery firm on Arch street.

"It was at the latter's window when I

LOSES LIFE IN VAIN EFFORT TO SAVE PAL

Jenkintown Youngster Makes Futile Attempt to Pull Other From Water

Frankenfield, fourteen years old, of Jenkintown, lost his life yesterday afternoon in a canal at Smithtown, Bucks County, while trying to save his pal, Alfonso Lavala, fifteen years old, who had fallen in.

Frankenfield was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Frankenfield, of Jenkintown. With his grandmother, Mrs. Hattie Fox, he had come to spend the week-end on the farm of his uncle, Franklin G. Fox.

The Jenkintown boy on previous visits had become friendly with Lavala, who was the ward of Louis S. Signafos, a farmer of Smithtown.

Went to "Swimming Hole"
The two boys yesterday went to what is known as "the offshoot," a spur of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Co. canal, which empties into the Delaware River at that point, ten miles east of Doylestown.

The canal offshoot recently was dredged to a depth of fifteen feet. It was a shallow pool of water, and the boys were playing in it.

Lavala went over his head at once. Frankenfield began swimming, but when he saw his friend's plight he swam toward him and seized him with one hand.

It is believed Lavala clasped his hand over his eyes, and that Frankenfield could not swim. Wells, back again on the bank, saw them disappear. He ran for help and notified Joseph Mezge, a manufacturer of this city who has a bungalow at Smithtown.

Boys Are Recovered
When Mr. Mezge reached the place nothing was seen of the boys. A search of the canal and the surrounding woods, however, revealed the point where the boys were last seen, jammed a pole into the bed of the offshoot and then climbed down to the bottom. He located both bodies.

A futile attempt was made to resuscitate the boys.

Frankenfield was an honor student in the human class of the Jenkintown High School.

Lavala was placed in Mr. Signafos' care five years ago by the Montgomery County Court.

The body was left hanging to the tree. Pieces of the rope and chain, and even fingers and toes were claimed by the crowd, which collected after the posse dispersed.

JAMES AND SCHUCK DENIED APPEALS BY JERSEY COURT

Slayers of Camden Bank Runner Must Die in Electric Chair

The first-degree murder conviction of Raymond W. Schuck and Frank P. James was upheld today by the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals.

The slayers will die in the electric chair. Schuck and James were convicted at separate trials of the murder last October of Davis S. Paul, a Camden bank messenger, whose body was found some days after he had left the Broadway Trust Co. with $40,000 in cash and $30,000 in checks.

Schuck and James were sentenced to death by Justice Katzenbach, of the New Jersey Supreme Court, who presided at their trials. A stay of sentence was obtained pending the appeal.

Chancellor Edwin R. Walker wrote the opinion, which was announced today at Trenton. Affirmation of the conviction means that the convicted men must be taken to Camden for resensitizing. They are now in the deathhouse at Trenton.

TAXI PASSENGER BEATS CHAUFFEUR; CAR WRECKED

Would Be Robber Escapes, but Suspect Is Caught Later

Samuel Packard, 808 North Seventh street, a taxi driver, was the victim of an assault and attempt to rob early today, when a passenger opened the glass back of him and struck him over the head with a bottle.

Packard lost control of the machine and the taxi crashed into a telegraph pole, jolting both men to the sidewalk. Uninjured, but frightened, the other man ran away.

The driver reported the attack to the police, who sent to League Island and were told a man was hanging around a restaurant just outside the yard.

A search of this place finally disclosed a man hiding in the yard in the rear. He was arrested and given his name as James Robinson, 813 Stanton avenue, Haddon Heights, N. J. Packard partially identified him.

GIRL REGAINS VISION

New York, June 20.—Probably no one would blame Miss Bertha Leopoldine, of 475 Fourth avenue, Brooklyn, for not having stopped smiling except when she was laughing—three weeks ago last Friday.

She didn't find she had been left a blind girl on that day. Neither did she wake up to find herself famous. In fact, what happened was entirely ordinary. She suddenly found she could see out of a left eye that had been stone blind since she was three years old. She is nineteen now.

Not only that, but Miss Leopoldine also discovered she had a very good and very bright eye—was not nearly so crossed as she always had remembered it. In fact, it was practically as straight as its equally bright twin.

SURGEON CUTS HIS THUMB; NEAR DEATH BY BLOOD POISON

Dr. J. C. Hartwell Insisted on Finishing Appendicitis Operation, Saving Patient—His Own Life May Be the Price

Dr. J. C. Hartwell, of 3302 North Broad street, is near death at the Anderson Hospital, 1514 North Fifteenth street, as a result of poisoning from a slight cut of the thumb inflicted in the course of an appendicitis operation.

A week ago today Dr. Hartwell, of the staff of the Anderson Hospital, performed an operation at the institution on a patient whose condition was unusually serious. The appendix was infected and the poison was spreading.

Working rapidly and with precision, the surgeon slightly cut his right thumb through his rubber glove.

Dr. Hartwell did not interrupt the operation to attend to his own injury and as a result the life of his patient was saved. He realized his own danger, but hoped against hope infection might not result.

He returned to his home and said nothing to his wife of the accident. This night he became ill, and was taken, at his own direction, to the Anderson Hospital.

The present position admitted through the small cut in his thumb spread quickly through the surgeon's system. His temperature rose rapidly, and a lethargy which he could not shake off seized him.

Although he has not been delirious at any time, Dr. Hartwell suffers from a peculiar drowsiness. His condition remains critical and every effort to reduce his fever, which is between 102 and 104, has failed.

In addition to his work at the Anderson Hospital, Dr. Hartwell is a member of the staff of the National Stomach Hospital, 1514 North Fifteenth street.

St. Andrews, Scotland, June 20.—(By A. P.)—A Philadelphia-born pro on the American golf team, turned the classic St. Andrews course in 73 strokes today, playing his first round to qualify for the open golf championship of Great Britain.

Hoffner is now at the Philmont Country Club, Philadelphia, and his card today was but two strokes over the professional record of the century-old St. Andrews links, and it equaled the amateur record.

Play was started to the accompaniment of a stiff northwest wind which added to the difficulties of the golfers, who represent the cream of the world's amateur and professional talent. The young American led the early starters by 5 strokes and experts concede that Hoffner is almost sure to qualify for the main 72-hole medal round for the championship which starts Wednesday when the lowest eighty players today and tomorrow will compete.

Evans Takes 83
Fred McLeod, Washington, D. C., had an 81 and Willie Mellorn, Shreveport, La., scored 85 over the old course today.

Chick Evans, United States amateur champion, had an 83 over the same course. Evans suffered a strained wrist while visiting in Paris, and was doubtful whether he could play up to the last minute.

Half the field played St. Andrews today, the other half at Eden. George Peck, present British open champion, turned the Eden course in 76 strokes, tying with J. H. Taylor, the famous Briton, among the early starters.

George McLean, American pro, had a 77, Jim Barnes, 78, and Wilfred Reid, Wilmington, Del., had an 82 over the same course which is 6300 yards.

There were seventeen American amateurs and pros in the competition to qualify. Of these twelve were the professional starters in an attempt to lift the British title. Hagen, Hartison and French were among the last-starters on the Yankee side of the draw.

10,000 COAL MINERS STRIKE

Violation of Wage Agreement Alleged by Union Members

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 20.—(By A. P.)—Nearly 10,000 men employed by the Pennsylvania Coal Co. went on strike today, alleging the company is not paying wages in accordance with the agreement signed last year. Company officials declare the strike is illegal and will fight it to the end.

The miners, it is said, have not placed their grievances before the district board for consideration. The strike was called by leaders friendly to Enoch Williams, the newly elected secretary-treasurer of the Miners' Union of District No. 1. The Pennsylvania Coal Co. has been the scene of numerous strikes in the last eight months.

REDUCE ACREAGE OF EGYPTIAN COTTON CROP

PROPOSED BENCH PART OF VERSAILLES PLANS

By CLINTON W. GILBERT
Special Correspondent Evening Public Ledger

Washington, June 20.—The League of Nations once more turn awkwardly for this country. What will Elihu Root, John George Gray, Professor John Bassett Moore and Oscar S. Straus do in reply to the request of the Council of the League that they name two American judges as candidates for election to the bench of the world court of justice?

This request is made to Mr. Root, Judge Gray, Mr. Straus and Professor Moore not as private citizens, but as members of the League of Nations. The world court of justice being related under the plan drafted last summer to the Hague tribunal, as well as the League of Nations.

President Harding, it is generally believed, contemplates the use of the Hague tribunal as the basis of such an international court as he proposes to make a part of the League of Nations. But the Hague tribunal is now being committed to a court which is part of the League of Nations.

If the four American members of the Hague tribunal suggest American candidates for judgeship in the world court the United States will be represented in a court of international justice. It is they desire to do so, Mr. Root, at least, will be in the embarrassing position of refusing to carry through to completion the plan which he himself began last summer for the world, and which is largely his product, in co-operation with the British lawyer who sat with him in conference on the creation of a court at the request of the League of Nations.
